I am glad Bill Arp went to Estonton. It may be there is nothing specially attractive in the old town, save to those who have a traditions; but, somehow or other, I am Iways gratified when Eatonton is visited by people of whom I am fond, and for this reason I am glad Bill Arp has made the pilwent in excellent trim. Even the rheumasm, with a fine sense of what is seasonable and proper, left him free to enjoy himself, and the result is, he came away absolutely saturated with the serens spirit of the place and refuses to converse about anything else when he ventures to climb to the editorial rooms for the purpose of warming his hands over the pile of exchanges, "The people over the pile, of exchanges. The subsequent career of this remarkable man has made his singula advent into Putnam, an occurence markable man has made his singula advent into Putnam, an occurence not to be forgotten. Indeed, if forms an episode in the history of the county which has been carefully preserved in documents as well as in tradition. In 1865, the spot where Seward taught was marked by the decaying timbers of the rude school house; in 1868, it had been ob literated by a negro cabia. It will never be known whether Seward was a fugitive or at earlie. He responded to an advertisement inserted in the colimns of the Milledgeville. He was just out of college—a young man with flamitg red hair, reserved in manner but possessing extreme sensibility. It was understood that he had become involved in some difficulty with his family, and he sought to forget his troubles and be forgotten. He was found out, however, and in duced to return home. Years afterward, he revisited the scene of his labors as a country schoolmaster. He had been governor of New York, and had his eye on larger things, but he turned his steps south ward upon a second pilgrimage. This second visit was a mystery until, in 1864, the writer hereof, rummaging among some old books in the garret of a house that had one been the residence of Major Francis Ward, came upon a worn duodecimer copy of 'Jacob Faithful.' Between the laded leaves of that volume was a long love letter from Mr. Seward addressed to a lady whose marble toombstone had long been overron with weeds and grass. With the letter was a lock of red hair. It was to see this lady that Seward revisited Putnam county, but I doubt if, even by accident, he found her grave. She died young but the letter from Seward justifies me in saying that she died well-beloved. He denounced thi

The bridal party left for Atlanta by the 3:15 train. Mr. Petty and his fair young bride have rooms at the Kumball hause, and have been kept quite busy since their arrival in receiving the sincere congratulations of a host of friends. Mr. Petty is a young man of fine character and stands in the front rank of the rising business young men of this city. His agreeable address, generous heart and sterling worth are fully appreciated, not only in this city, but where ever he is known. The Constructions is proud of him as an Atlanta boy, and in a manch with his many friends here warmly ongatulate him upon winning a bride whose common with his many friends here warmly on gatulate him upon wins, ma a bride whose toveliness of character, beauty of person, gentleness of disposition and brightness of mind have long made her a ruling attraction in the social circles of our sister city. Previous to this industrial movement, there was the real ligious impulse, and in Eatonton, in 1827, was inaugurated the great religious revival which resulted in the conversion of twenty thousand souls, and which is still remembered as one of the most notable phenomena of church development ever witnessed in this country. There is a healthy conservatism in the mental and moral equipment of the people of Eatonton that must be dear to a man of such gentle moods as William Arp. The hospitality which attracted his attention is but the foliage that hides the finer flower of social perfection. There is no social development without repose. BigH & HERRIN. Strangers visiting Atlanta have frequently spoken disparagingly of the manner in which some of the city's fairest daughters walk upon the streets. The whole thing originated from the miserable quality and ditting of the shoes they have been in the habit of wearing. Mark Berry, at 33 Feachtree street, has contributed largely to the refutation of such slanders, by keeping the best quality of Boois, Shoes, Slippers, etc. to sell, and all the latest styles. It is the style, after all, that makes the show, and when combined with comfort, puts the wearer on the best footing.

AWL the shoemakers, to the LAST one, acknowledge the corn, SOLE and body, that Mark Berry started a first-class Boot and Shoe store and keeps PEGGING away in the same channel, and will always be patronized as hadeserves TOE be.

A serious accident was prevented yesterday, about 6 o'clock, by a gentleman stepping into Mark Berry's Boot and Shoe Store on Peachtree street, just in the niche of time. While there he purchased a fine pair of boots for himself and a pair of handsome shoes for his wife, thereby saving 25 per cent, which he might have lost by buring elsewhere. The ringing of the fire bells yesterday at 12:05 was not on account of a fire, but of a burning desire of some of the company to rejoice at having secured a perfect fit, comfortable in every way, at Mark Berry's Boot and Shoe Store, at 33 Feachtree street.

"The Leader of Low Prices,"

Has just returned from New York, having been enabled by a condition of circumstances to gather together just such a stock a has never before been placed on sale in Atlanta. Time, as well as space, forbids an elaborate detail of the means, etc., employed in the purchase of this stock; but, perhaps, one or two items may serve to convey readily to the mind of the reader the immense advantages brought to bear in its purchase. First, armed with an attendance of Cash, every nook and crevice in New York where MONEY WAS REALLY SOUGHT FOR has been canvassed, and with surprising results, as the subjoined list will show. Second, my brother having come from Europe to join his efforts and his means with mine he purchased before starting for this country immense lines of goods under my, instructions, and the result is that I am prepared to lay the same before purchasers at as low prices as New York importers job the same classes of goods for. This list will be found interesting to the Ladies!
